A leading domestic apparel contractor for the last 50 years, Hemingway has partnered with some of the largest garment companies in the world, as well as government agencies and up-and-coming brands. As a well-respected brand and partner within the ever-changing fashion industry, Hemingway has recognized an increased need to interact online with prospects, partners and the up-and-coming generation of professionals.

“Providing unparalleled quality and service is what we pride ourselves on at Hemingway, which is why it’s extremely important for us to be more accessible than ever before,” says, Hemingway Apparel President, Chris Marsh. “Apparel manufacturers in general have been slow to interact with the industry online; we’re excited to be a part of pioneering a change in that. Our goal is to enhance our current relationships, connect with others in the industry, and share the expertise we’ve gained over the last several decades.”

Hemingway’s new website will be updated on a regular basis with relevant blog updates, events, and customer-related news. Visitors are encouraged to explore the website and connect with the company at <https://hemingwayapparel.com>
